LIVESTOCK

Junior Web Assistant

To whom it may concern,

I am writing to apply for the Junior Web Assistant position at Livestock Vancouver. As someone with a love for creating web pages and an interest in business and e-commerce, I think this would be a great opportunity for me.

I am currently a few days away from finishing my last semester of SFU's Interactive Arts and Technology Program and throughout my time there my efforts have been focused on user experience design and web development, while simultaneously building upon my graphic design knowledge and itch for business.

My time at Canadian Tire as a UX Researcher taught me how to combine usage statistics from tools such as Google Analytics in order to maintain and improve the experience and engagements with web pages and pieces of content.

As a Project Officer at Service Canada, I greatly improved my front-end web development abilities while also learning how to juggle working as a team of one between multiple teams in different departments.

Creating 3D models and renderings for JKA taught me the importance of trusting your experience and learning on the go in order to be able to tackle challenges which may not be exactly in your area of expertise.

If given the opportunity, this position will be a great test for my skills and I am confident I will be able to deliver great results.

Thanks in advance,

Momchil Kutev
